Brother 2 Brother (B2B)

Brother 2 Brother (B2B) is a chapter of the national student organization Student African American Brotherhood (SAAB).

B2B gives REACH students the opportunity to continue their personal development with other students at CGTC through community service, opportunities to mentor, as well as opportunities to network with community stake holders, potential employers, and other students across the nation.

Mentor a student today!

REACH is always looking for dedicated faculty and staff members to serve as mentors for our students.

What is REACH?

REACH collaborates with community and industry-driven leaders who proactively establish a professional standard of values and ethics towards challenging and nourishing students to achieve a productive lifestyle.

REACH envisions a college community which pursues, empowers, and fosters an environment for student success in post-secondary education and beyond.

REACH Students

The REACH organization was originally designed to engage African American males between the ages of 18 to 28 entering college for the first time. However, the program now encourages all currently enrolled students to participate in Student Sessions on each campus.

Student Sessions are offered bi-weekly on all three main campus locations— Macon, Warner Robins, & Milledgeville.

"What I gained by participating in the REACH Organization was learning that I am not alone in a lot of areas in life."
